Prudes Outraged Female Teacher Melissa Nosti Who Had Sex With 15-Year-Old Teen Student Didn’t Get Harsher Sentence

The first time I had sex was completely boring. I won’t go into details, in case my parents see this (lol), but it did not measure up to the expectations I had hearing about from friends or from porn. I’m not ashamed to admit it when I say if I could’ve had sex with one of my friend’s moms with big tits, I would’ve done it. It is quite literally every teenage boy’s wet dream. I suppose if I was fifteen and the woman was an adult it would be considered rape. But let me give you a hint into teenage male psychology: zero teen boys think boning their teacher is rape. Our legal system might, but teenage boys don’t. My philosophy is basically if you are fertile, you can consent. That doesn’t mean it should be legal, moral or normalized necessarily, because girls can be fertile at very young ages. But if a boy is thirteen and can cum, who am I to judge?

The story that prompt this meltdown by prudes was an ex-flight attendant, Melissa Nosti, turned teacher who had sex with her fifteen-year-old male student, but only received a week in jail. I mean, we all know the kid bragged to his friends about it. All jokes aside, here is Will Westcott to explain the matter in a way only he could:

> Boning your big titted teacher is a fantasy most every boy on the planet has had. Nobody considers it rape, and if it was forcible rape, that too is a fantasy, some would say is even hotter. Innumerable works of fiction have been dedicated to this fetish. The act itself can certainly be damaging for both participants. Sex can never measure up to the fantasy, even more so when it’s a fetish. But that doesn’t mean we’re dealing with rape.

The hyper puritanism of modern man as regards sex reviles the actual puritanism of yesteryear. So what if a fifteen year old boned his teacher? Is this really the issue we should die on a hill for? As the old adage goes, you can judge a man by the battles he chooses. I penned an article about female on male rape where I said that there are cases where men can be rape victims. If you are truly forced, then that is the different. But just because we have decided to arbitrarily set the date for when people can have sex doesn't mean it makes any sense. And no, I'm not advocating for the elimination of age of consent laws at all. But a fifteen-year-old boy having sex with his teacher? C'mon, that's not a huge problem. In conclusion, if my fifteen-year-old son came home and told me he slept with his teacher I'd be seriously proud of that conquest. I mean, it's preferable to being an incel or school shooter, right??
